

This week's virtual project is a collaborative piece of work! The aim is to build a copy of a well-known piece of art by joining together our individual "tiles".

We can't be together yet but we can still work "together".

Please find attached an image of a cropped section of "Church In Cassone" by Gustav Klimt (A4 size). The other attachment shows each square scaled up to 9cm (some sharpness lost in resizing but yours can be more defined!) – you might find it useful to print relevant pages.

Please reply to this email and you will be given a grid reference to a square – they will be allocated in the order that emails are received.

You can complete your square using any medium, the only stipulations are that it MUST measure 9cm x 9cm and any lines or shapes must match up with any adjacent squares.

Email a photo of your finished square when you're ready.

There's no pressure to complete your square in a week, they will be collated when they are all finished. Hopefully the originals can be combined when we can all meet up again :o)
